ORCHARDISTS AT MOUNTAIN GROVE JULY 27

Scientific Orchardling Will Be Explained at State Fruit Experiment Station.

Improve the varieties.

This slogan, adopted by Prof. F. W. Faurout director of the Missouri fruit experiment station at Mountain Grove, and his corps of specialists who are attached to the station, promises a new era for orchardists in the Ozark region. The almost impossible task of producing fruit, suitable for Missouri and especially the Ozarks by grafting the trunks of hardy varieties with trees capable of producing the finest fruit on the market is an accomplished fact.

To show just how far scientific orcharding has advanced the fruit industry in Missouri, a monster mass meeting of fruit growers of Missouri and North Arkansas has been called for Tuesday, July 27, at Mountain Grove, for the purpose of conducting a demonstration at the state experiment station.

This day promises to be one of the greatest in the history of Mountain Grove. The Commercial club has appointed committees to complete arrangements for the day that is to be featured by an old fashioned basket dinner served on the lawn near the administration building. A special car will carry orchardists from the immediate vicinity of Springfield and many are planning to make the trip overland in automobiles.

Immediately upon arriving in Mountain Grove, the visiting orchardists were conveyed to the experiment station in machines provided by the Commercial club.

The demonstration at the station will be conducted by Director Faurout, assisted by officials of the Frisco department of development who are co-operating in making the event one of the greatest of its kind ever staged in Missouri.

The experiment station is composed of 190 acres of land near Mountain Grove. The demonstration farm, comprising 180 acres, is divided into sectional orchards.

Near the entrance to the orchard are located the plots devoted to apples and strawberries of the seedling variety. More than 50,000 seedling plants are given every care by the station employees with a view of producing a variety more suitable for commercial purposes in this section of the country.

"The Ozark region is one of the finest in the United States for growing grapes, as the crop is three weeks earlier than that from other parts of the country and they seem to do so well down in Southwest Missouri and Northern Arkansas," Professor Faurout said.

Professor Faurout believes that some day the Ozark country will be one of the recognized grape-growing centers of the globe. The head of the Welch Grape Juice company recently visited in Southwest Missouri and was so favorably impressed with conditions that he recommended the establishment of a plant in Springfield or at some other point in the Ozarks where the crop could be easily handled.

In addition to the trip through the orchards, the visitors will be treated to a series of lectures by experts on how to meet the everyday problems in horticulture work.

Among the speakers will be W. L. English, supervisor of agriculture, Frisco system; Professor F. W. Faurout director of the station; D. E. Elcher, horticultural expert, Frisco system; A. P. Boles, Arkansas orchardist and former Frisco expert, and others. Jewell Mayes, head of the state department of agriculture, has been invited to make an address to the horticulturalists, and it is expected that other experts from different parts of the country will be present to aid in making the day one of the most successful demonstration meets in the history of the state.

MONETT GREYS 3; AURORA 1

The first Aurora club dropped a hard fought contest Sunday to the Monett Greys by a score of 3 to 1. Aurora led off and attempted to score in the first inning but Stewart's double and a fly to Andrews put the damper on the visitors. Monett scored two runs in the second inning off three hits and a bunt down third base line. In the eighth they scored one more off Davis' two bagger and another effective bunt and a single to center. The visitors tallied one in the seventh but were dangerous at several periods when Walner, the Grey's mound king, would whiff them down. He pitched the Greys out of several holes and fanned 20 opposing men while two Aurora pitchers fanned only three men each.
